High Tech High Style

OBJECTIVE

When you deliver innovative, web-based social networking and online community software to customers such as NASA and the World Bank, you need to conduct business at a level of sophistication that meets or exceeds their expectations. So the CEO of Ramius himself worked with the design team to ensure that the new office plan and furniture selection met a high international standard of function and styling.

The interior designer created a visually compelling environment that is as striking as it is enabling. Staff work in a dynamic open space that encourages creative interaction while additional rooms provide bright private places for focused group and client activity. MultiStations OS provides the critical foundation for this innovative space.

"For our new office, our designer presented us with a number of prominent brand name furniture options. I personally chose MultiStations OS over the others because it met our aesthetic and functional requirements perfectly. The design is elegant, clean, and contemporary, while also being very functional and easily reconfigurable. We are very happy with our investment. The space turned out beautifully."
