The New Professionalism

Distinguished, Classic AND Progressive

OBJECTIVE

When your physical office environment becomes a key component of your recruitment strategy for professional staff, you know you selected the right furniture.

SullivanCotter, a leading health care compensation and human resource management consulting firm in the United States, systematically reviewed five leading furniture manufacturers to standardize their offices across the country.

They wanted furniture that reflected the new professional office: Multi-cultural, multi-generational and multi-functional. With a priority on creating a unified design for the complete office that adapted to differing tasks and floor plans.

After selecting and installing Three H product lines they discovered that staff not only took particular pride in their new offices but the furniture was attracting the attention of top recruits.

"Three H furniture, with the bow shaped desks and bull-nose edge, simply enhances our professional corporate culture. The product accommodates varying sized offices at a variety of locations, and provides a unified look and richness in appearance. Three H provides incredible flexibility - as evidenced in the large wall mounted hutches that accommodate our requirement for substantial reference binders."
