Three H Introduces a Unique Advance in Height Adjustable Workstations

By merging its critically acclaimed and popular MultiStations OS 1 inch panel system with an integrated electronic worksurface mechanism, the form and function of worksurfaces has evolved.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(October 29, 2014) Baltimore. Three H, today, is announcing the official launch of its new sit-stand program called UpSide™ at NeoCon East.

UpSide™ is a set of component options that allow customers to incorporate a height adjustable worksurface into any Three H product line from open plan to private office.

Proprietary to Three H is a custom design that integrates movable worksurfaces cleanly and efficiently within its 1 inch panel system without the need for base feet. That not only allows for increased space and lateral movement for the user, but it also permits the option to integrate cabinets within the workstations.

UpSide™ also features surface screen options for freestanding tables, and a knife edge and solid wood edge options on top of its 1 and 3mm PVC edge choices.

Brian Conlin, COO at Three H, emphasizes: " We specifically to set out to improve on the basic notion of height adjustable worksurfaces. By developing our own method to integrate sit-stand into our complete product range - specifically within our 1 inch panel system - we are giving our customers more design choices in a very efficient and elegant system."

Two adjustable electronic mechanisms are available. Offering a maximum range of 23 to 49 inches in height, LED display, memory positions and an anti-collision sensor option.
